NHS Lanarkshire has exciting plans for the development of a new, state-of-the-art University Hospital Monklands.

After extensive review, the existing site of Monklands is considered too small to build a replacement, especially whilst maintaining an operational hospital. We are therefore looking for an alternative site.

We want your help to make sure we’ve considered all the possibilities for a new site for the hospital.

How you can participate

Tell us if you know of a site we should be considering for the new University Hospital Monklands.

Sites must meet all five of the site selection criteria shown on the next page.

Don’t worry if you’re not sure whether or not your site suggestion matches all the criteria. We’ll work that out when we receive your nomination.

Let us know your site suggestion by noon on 13 December 2019.

Details of how to submit your nomination are on the back page.

NHS Lanarkshire will assess your suggestion and, if it meets all of the criteria, it will be included in an upcoming site re-evaluation process along with the two viable sites previously identified – Gartcosh and Glenmavis – plus any other options that emerge from a site search by North Lanarkshire Council.

Criteria for Site Selection

- Within the University Hospital Monklands unscheduled care catchment area.
  See map of nominal catchment area on front page.

- A minimum of 40 acres of developable land.
  That’s an area at least the size of 40 football pitches. The existing Monklands site is 27 acres. The approximate area required depends on features such as shape, slope, etc.

- Sufficient road/transport infrastructure for a major hospital site.
  Contractors will need to get to the site to build a new hospital. When it opens there will have to be good access from the road network so that patients, staff and visitors can get there.

- Designated for this type of development by North Lanarkshire Council.
  The site needs to have a realistic chance of getting planning approval from North Lanarkshire Council.

- The site has no detrimental impact on adjoining unscheduled care catchment areas of hospitals in Lanarkshire, Glasgow or Forth Valley.
  The closer a new hospital is to an existing hospital, the more disruptive an effect this can have on patient flows, particularly to A&E. NHS Lanarkshire will assess the impact of any proposed site on adjacent hospitals.

We’re looking for nominations for a specific site, not just a general area. Please include as much information as you can to help us identify your site – the name it is known by, its postcode, what it is bounded by, etc.
